A LOTTA YOTTA: STORE NEWS

The month of May was another month filled with fun and excitement at Yottaquest. We attended the first year of CincyCon and had a great time. We met some new people and many familiar faces. Warhammer 40k players saw the beginning of our summer league and the annual 'Ard Boyz tournament. Magic players enjoyed not only our regular Friday Night Magic standard tournaments but also Game Day Rise of the Eldrazi and many, many drafts. Pokémon players saw our first ever Battleroads tournament. Comic readers of all ages enjoyed our best Free Comic Book Day along with a sneak preview of our epic collection of back issues (considering A's had 14 long boxes). Yottaquest had a booth at the third annual Mt. Healthy Business Expo where we gave out free t-shirts and gift certificates. The back room saw a lot of attention and when the dust settled; well let's just say it looks a lot better. More renovations are planned, so keep checking in on us. So, with all that in May, what does June promise? Free RPG Day, Origins, and let's not forget Yottaquest turns six years old. Mondays are now Warhammer Fantasy/ Warhammer 40K night. We hope to see you at the party!

EYE ON YOU

Rick Ohl

Hey Everyone! I'm Rick, and I am currently a Political Science and Philosophy student at Miami University, as well as an IT Support Analyst.

When I am not in the middle of a book for class, I can be found playing my favorite miniatures game: Warmachine. My group of Wednesday night players has recently started a podcast about Warmachine and Hordes, which is located at our site

www.theprimegeneration.com

You can also find me every Wednesday night playing a few games or running a demo or two.

I started my gaming career with

Magic and Dungeons and Dragons at age 12, and I've been hooked ever since! After going through Magic, Mage Knight, Battletech, and World of Warcraft, I've settled on just the one miniatures game.

I discovered Warmachine at Gencon in 2007 and haven't looked back. After discovering the Wednesday night group at Yottaquest, I've been avidly playing Warmachine and Hordes, while still maintaining my D&D nights with the great group of guys I've been playing with for almost 6 years. If I can ever get a job that doesn't have me working until 8, I would love to try out a D&D encounter at YQ! My beautiful and understanding girlfriend, Shannon, lets me have my usual game nights, so I always make the most of them.

For almost a year now I've been serving as the "Press Ganger" for Cincinnati, which means I run demos and tournaments for Warmachine and Hordes. I'm glad that I've found a great store here that supports me and my group and gives us a great place to play. If you see me around ask for a demo, or maybe about the Bearded Devil that nearly one-shot my monk last night. See you all at Yotta!

-Rick

ON A ROLE: ROLE PLAYING GAMES

Mutants & Masterminds 3rd edition is scheduled to be released this fall from Green Ronin. This marks the first update in 5 years. The rules have been simplified and tweaked in some areas and they will be compatible with the new DC Adventures RPG, releasing in August.

SUPERS! is a new "costumed hero" themed game coming from Cubicle 7 in September. The full-color paperback rulebook will reportedly provide for quick and easy character generation and gameplay so that you can begin your life of crime-fighting right away...

FFG will be releasing The Edge of Night in August. It is a new adventure boxed set for the Warhammer Fantasy Roleplay game. The set includes a host of material to run the campaign including handouts, action cards and tokens.

SMALL VICTORIES: MINIATURES GAMING

New Hordes minis are coming your way in late summer! Privateer Press announced seven new sets as well as a brand new sourcebook to be released in August. The sets include: Circle Orboros Warborn Skinwalkers, which comes with one leader and four grunts; Legion of Everblight Stinger, two per pack; Skorne Dominar Rasheth; and 4 others.

The new sourcebook, available in soft and hardcover will be Forces of Hordes: Skorne. It will be 112 pages filled with everything you ever wanted to know on how to unleash the armies of Skorne to crush all enemies in the Iron Kingdoms.

NECA / WizKids will continue to release DC HeroClix for several more years since Warner Bros. extended the license agreement. In addition to previously announced sets of Watchmen, and the Blackest Night Starter Game, look for Jonah Hex (coming soon), Brightest Day Action Pack (October) and the DC 75th Anniversary Set in November.

COMICS CORNER: COMIC BOOKS

Diamond Comics Distributors is still moving forward with changing New Comics Day to Tuesday instead of Wednesday. As previously reported, this would put comics release dates in line with other forms of media such as books and movies which currently come out on Tuesdays. In addition, Diamond wants to allow retailers to receive their shipments on Monday in order to have more time to process the new inventory. The stumbling block has been a way to monitor retailers to be sure of no early sales. They have opted to try to utilize the 'secret shopper' service to keep tabs on stores participating in the early shipment program. If the changes go through, they would most likely not be made until after the first of the year.

And the new Chief Creative Officer of Marvel Entertainment is none other than... Joe Quesada. That's right, the former CCO of the comics and animation divisions now has a hand in the movie, TV and game properties of Marvel. In addition, he will continue to serve as Editor-In-Chief of Marvel Publishing.

Busy Joe had this to say, "I am honored to take this new position at Marvel Entertainment and work with Alan (Executive Vice President, Alan Fine) to bring the rich history of Marvel to a brand new audience."
